Cambridge University Press, £25.00 and £8.95

The multidisciplinary evidence presented in this unique and wide-ranging book shows that there is the potential for systematic alteration of human behavior with time, although this capability decreases with age.

A Triarchic Theory of Human Intelligence
ROBERT J. STERNBERG

This book presents a new triarchic theory of human intelligence which deals with the relations between innate abilities and the experience of the individual. Studies of 'practical' and 'academic' intelligence, as well as of the effects of environment, are examined in the light of data from the sciences of human intelligence and psychology.
